What is a Yagnya?

Yagnyas were a regular part of the individual and community life in ancient Vedic civilization. These Vedic rituals each have a specific intended result; they are performed in a precise manner and at an auspicious time by trained Vedic priests/pundits. The formulas for these Vedic performances have come down to us from time immemorial.

As spiritual beings living the human experience, we can choose to rely exclusively on our worldly resources, or we can petition the aid of our allies in the divine realms. By contacting the celestial field of life during the yagnya, the Vedic priest appeals to this Divine energy and asks for grace and intervention on behalf of the person requesting the yagnya. With the support of the Divine, one is able to more easily achieve improved health, greater wealth, and spiritual enlightenment.

The response from the Divine is mysterious by its very nature, but it is not magical. Results are sometimes dramatic, as seen in people who are relieved from serious illness and health issues. However, the yagnya itself does not take away the disease—it helps to clear away karmic obstacles so that the doctor's treatments can be more effective. Thus, we don't claim that we can change every condition; we do what we can so that the infusion of Divine help can make life smoother and more positive. The Vedic rituals are like insurance policies for the individual, the family, businesses and the world.

Purpose of a Yagnya

The purpose of a yagnya is to create life-supporting effects and to help amend any unwanted tendencies or prevent them from manifesting. Yagnyas help to eliminate or reduce negativity in life while bringing additional support for maximum success and fulfillment. By counteracting negative karma from our past actions, the yagnyas help to create positive karma for the future.

Yagnyas provide remedies to help resolve problems in various spheres of life. They are designed to solve specific health, financial, relationship and business problems, to balance a difficult astrological (jyotish) period, rectify vastu problems in homes and offices, or to encourage a beneficial event to occur. They are also employed for protection, to gain support for the fulfillment of a specific personal or business-related desire, improve sales in business, and to enhance evolution and spiritual growth towards enlightenment.

About Vedic Yagnya Centre

Vydic Yagnya Centre employs a core group of 20 priests/pundits; they represent all four branches of the Vedas, and are experts in Sri Vidya Navavarana Pujas, Maha Vidya Homas, Surya Upasana, and Maha Chandi Yagnyas. For large yagnyas, the Centre contracts with other pundits in India, and has organized big yagnyas and events with as many as 100 to 150 pundits. All pundits working through the Centre begin their day with meditation, followed by performance of the Rudrabhishek, and then go to their other duties. Some pundits specialize in health, some in business, etc., so the Centre organizes groups according to their specialties.

Vydic Yagnya Centre was founded by Pundit Sharma Samavedula, a 6th generation Samaveda pundit. In 1990, after twelve years of study, he received his degree in Vedic Studies. Punditji was a professor of Samaveda at Maharishi Veda Vignan Vishwa Vidya Peeth (Maharishi Vedic University in India) and then was a resident priest at the Vishnu Mandir in Toronto. From there he became head priest at the Hindu Temple in Montreal, Quebec and then head priest at the Austin Hindu Temple.

In 2000, Pundit Samavedula founded Vydic Yagnya Centre which now operates from facilities near Vijayawada India, close to the holy Krishna River and Divine Mother Kanaka Durga Temple, and from Fairfield, Iowa. Punditji also travels to various countries to do yagnyas in homes and businesses. In addition to providing yagnya services, VYC also supports a charitable organization in India that is actively involved in feeding the poor and running a Vedic School to train pundits.
